

Me and my grandad: Our day out

By Anthony Kildare

"Do you fancy going the pier head tomorrow?"

"Yes please"

I'm going on a day out with my grandad. It was a bright sunny day. I wore my Everton shirt, shorts and my lucky white cap. I met up with my grandad, and we get the bus into town. On the bus we talked about football. I can't wait to go the match when I'm older.

We walked through town to the pier head, and got on the ferry. This was the first time I had been on the ferry. "Ferry across the Mersey" by Gerry and the Pacemakers was playing, and I felt calm, and excited for the day ahead.

We got off the ferry at Birkenhead, and headed to the aquarium to see the fishes. There were fishes of all different sizes and colours.

After the aquarium, we went for a pub lunch. I had sausage and mash, with sticky toffee pudding for afters.

"Are you having a nice day?" my grandad asked.

"I'm having an absolutely brilliant day" I said.

After lunch we went for a walk around Birkenhead.

"We need to get something before we go... do you want some sweeties?" my grandad asked.

"Yes please" I said.

At the sweet shop, my grandad bought me a chocolate bar,
and we headed back the ferry.

Back at the pier head, we walked through town and got the bus back home.

"I really enjoyed my day" I thought, "We had lots of fun".
